Chapter 417: The Delegation of Divine Duties

The Transition of Authority

As the multiverse reached new heights of order and stability, Sung Jin-Woo made a monumental decision:

"The main clones of my essence shall now take on the role of overseers, detached from direct intervention. Their duties will be entrusted to the angels and dark angels, who are now the true stewards of creation."

This declaration marked the beginning of a new era, where divine responsibilities were fully delegated to the celestial hosts, allowing Sung Jin-Woo’s clones to focus on observing and maintaining the cosmic balance.

The Tasks Delegated to Angels and Dark Angels

1. Guardianship of Realms:
Centillions of angels and dark angels were stationed in every corner of the multiverse, protecting realms from threats and maintaining peace.

2. Blessing the Faithful:
Worshippers and followers across the realms now received their blessings directly from the angels. Miracles such as healing, empowerment, and enlightenment became routine, delivered by celestial emissaries.

3. Eliminating Outer Threats:
The celestial hosts took charge of defending the multiverse against entities from the void, abyss, and beyond. Their sheer numbers and divine power ensured that no intruder could breach the multiverse’s boundaries.

4. Communication with Mortals:
Angels and dark angels were appointed as divine messengers, tasked with delivering Sung Jin-Woo's words and guiding mortals along the path of righteousness.

5. System Maintenance:
The operation of the leveling systems in dimensional towers and realms was overseen by specialized angels, ensuring fairness and functionality.

The Role of the Main Clones

The 14 main clones of Sung Jin-Woo were now elevated to the role of supreme overseers, each assigned to observe specific aspects of creation:

1. Observers of Balance: Ensuring that no realm gained or lost too much power, maintaining equilibrium across the multiverse.

2. Recorders of Events: Chronicling every significant occurrence, from the rise of civilizations to the defeat of outer multiverse threats.

3. Guardians of Divine Edicts: Watching over the enforcement of Sung Jin-Woo's decrees, ensuring that his laws were upheld without question.

The clones no longer needed to interfere directly, as the celestial hosts carried out their duties with unmatched precision and dedication.

The Efficiency of Delegation

The delegation of duties resulted in a more streamlined and efficient governance system:

1. Increased Responsiveness: Angels and dark angels, being omnipresent across realms, could address issues instantly.

2. Specialized Forces: Different orders of celestial beings were assigned specific tasks, ensuring expertise in every area.

3. Enhanced Harmony: Mortals found comfort and inspiration in interacting directly with the celestial hosts, fostering deeper faith and cooperation.

The Clones’ Perspective

From their vantage points across the multiverse, the clones observed the celestial hosts with pride. They witnessed the angels and dark angels carrying out their duties flawlessly, embodying the divine will of Sung Jin-Woo.

“This is how it should be,” thought the First Clone. “We oversee, they act. The multiverse thrives under this system.”

A Divine Legacy

Sung Jin-Woo's decision to delegate his power marked a pivotal moment in the history of the multiverse. By entrusting his creations with such immense responsibility, he ensured that his legacy would endure for eternity.

As the celestial hosts illuminated the realms with their presence, the multiverse flourished, guided by the divine will of the True Absolute One.
